

KIWANIS NEWSLETTER

June 21, 2018

Guests- Diana Meyer brought Carol Greiten, a retired insurance agent.

Key Club- They will be holding a DCM in Santa Maria this weekend.

BBQ Committee- Led by Bill Fieldhouse #'s 1&2, they performed a previously donated BBQ for 50 people on June 16th. We have one more BBQ with a date TBA that was donated for this year.

Board Elections- We need some volunteers to be on the board for next year.

Joke- Roger Jump got mixed reviews for a golf joke.

Soap Box- James Shammass told us about People's Self-Help Housing's new condo project on Broad St.

Fines & Happy Bucks- Gary Simas was the fine master. Stew Jenkins gave for his name in the newspaper, a poor introduction, and his upcoming hip replacement. Doc Steele donated for Stew speaking to Doc's daughter's Speech Communication classes at Poly. Bart Topham donated for being back, his sister, son, and grandkids visiting, and surviving eye surgery. Larry Meek was happy the way he led the club in singing God Bless America. Lynn Cooper slipped in an advertisement for his church. Bill Fieldhouse was confused if the Blues were a baseball team or a type of music. Roger Jump's joke was too lengthy. Henry Rible was late. Rich Carsel visited Mike Murphy in Mexico and raved about the slow pace and low cost of living in the city where Mike is. Jim Irwin got hit for his phone ringing.

Program-Our speaker was Doug Davidson, deputy director of the SLO City Community Development Dept. He showed us slides of the 13 projects approved or under construction in downtown SLO. Most are mixed use commercial/residential properties. He said the state is really pushing the cities to build more residential housing.
